Madame Butterfly emerges from 300-lb. cyst

By JACK ALEXANDER
Staff writer

A gigantic ovarian cyst weighing a world shattering 303 pounds has been surgically removed from a 34-year-old woman who couldn't get out of bed for two years because of it.

"It is the largest cyst ever removed intact from a human body," said Dr. Katherine O'Hanlan, one of four doctors who performed the incredible feat during a 6 hour operation.

"In a matter of hours the woman lost 300 of her 303 pounds."

Incredibly, the huge, 3 foot wide cyst did not damage any of the patient's vital organs and she has shown absolutely no ill effects since the surgery.

The unidentified patient is 5-feet-10 and weighed 181 pounds less than the blob that had been growing inside of her for 10 years, attached to her right ovary.

O'Hanlan said the giant mass was composed of 30 small benign cysts. "It was like a water balloon that contained many other water balloons," she said.

Huge 3-foot-wide cyst kept woman trapped in bed for two years!

After dissecting the cyst from the woman's abdominal wall and intestine, surgeons placed the woman on her right side, removed the huge mass and "rolled it onto a stretcher," said O'Hanlan. "None of us knew if the cyst could be removed, but was afraid she would die during surgery to remove it.

"That's why she didn't have it removed earlier," said O'Hanlan, associate director of the gynecology cancer service and lungs quickly adapted once the extra weight was removed.

"Her heart had been working overtime, but because she was bedridden and had been lying on her right side there was no real strain on her cardiovascular system," she said.

The woman's remaining ovary is normal and her potential for bearing children has not been jeopardized.

"She has been a pleasure to observe since the cyst was removed," O'Hanlan said.

Man kills nagging wife — and goes free

Wife-strangler Bista Jujjnder Singh, on trial in London, was given a suspended 18-month sentence by a sympathetic British judge who said the man had suffered enough at the hands of his nagging wife.

Singh killed his wife, Harsh Kaur, 28, with a kitchen knife after she had driven him to the brink of madness with her constant nagging, the court was told.

Judge Gerald Butler cleared Singh of murder and manslaughter on the grounds that her nonstop nagging provoked him.

"I do not see sending you to prison is going to do you or your children any good," said the judge. "In fact, it would do them positive harm.

"You have suffered a terrible provocation."

LETTER from welfare workers to the dead man doesn't close the door to future assistance for him.

Dumb welfare workers write to a dead man — and wish him well!

By JOE BERGER
Staff writer

Nitwit welfare workers recently dashed off a letter to hapless Phillip Fleming, notifying the poor guy that he can no longer receive food stamps — because he's dead!

'If your situation changes, just call us,' letter says

And in the same letter, bubbleheaded bureaucrats informed the dearly departed fellow that he can ask for more aid the minute his condition improves.

"Your food stamps will be stopped effective March 1988 because we received notice that you passed away," declared some dingbat with the Greenville County, S.C., department of social services. "May God bless you.

"You may reapply if there is a change in your circumstances."

Fleming's grieving relatives opened the postage-paid letter simply couldn't believe their eyes.

"This just goes to show you how screwed up the system really is, when they start sending all letters like this to dead people," said heartsick half-brother Al Palanza Jr.

"At first I was really shocked and disgusted by the whole thing.

"But then I started thinking about how ridiculous it was, and I couldn't do anything but laugh."

Fleming's ordeal with the bureaucracy ventures began this spring when the 49-year-old former restaurant worker died after a long illness.

"There at the end, Phillip was too sick to work and applied for food stamps, even though his family would have been happy to support him," Palanza said.

"But his first packet of stamps didn't arrive until after he died, so we sent them back. Then, to our surprise, somebody at the county sent them back to us."

And then, a couple of weeks after the luckless Fleming was laid to rest, Greenville County notified him that his death made him ineligible to get any more stamps. But if he wanted to appeal, he was welcome to try, the husband-letter informed him.

"I guess this is just typical of what goes on when you're dealing with the government."

PRISONER Herbert Pickney was foaming at the mouth and chanting verses from the Bible when guards found him.

Man kills himself by eating soap!

A Bible-thumping prisoner died after chewing down on eight bars of soap and five cans of shaving cream!

"All he would say is 'The Lord made me do it,' and 'Please take me, Lord,' as they were rushing him to the hospital," said Chief Coroner E. Ray Shukes about Herbert Pickney, 38, who died of cardiac arrest after arriving at Charleston County Memorial Hospital, S.C.

Pickney was causing a disturbance in his cell by reading the Bible out loud and singing religious songs, Shukes said. When guards arrived to shut him up, he told them he had eaten five cans of shaving cream, according to the coroner.

"One can is enough to kill you, because of all the chemicals in it," Shukes said.

"Somehow he got hold of some soap and ate that, too. He was foaming at the mouth and chanting verses from the Bible when they found him. This guy was a strange one."

Pickney's death was ruled as a suicide but prison officials refused to comment on why he did it. He had been in jail for less than a month for contempt of court.

BARE-BOTTOM

Daredevils strip to the buff to dive off 140-foot cliff!

BIRD! Thousands of thrill-seekers flocked to chilly Nanaimo, British Columbia, for the world's first in-the-buff bungee jump.

NAKED COURAGE: This young man flies through the air with the greatest of ease — and not much else!

Dingbat daredevils streamed into the wilds of Canada and camped overnight in the bone-chilling cold to take part in the world's bawdiest bungee jump, leaping 140 feet through the air — while naked as a jaybird!

"Wow! I felt like a bird with no feathers flying around up there," shivered a shapely lady jumper moments after her eye-popping plunge into space. "It was so exciting I forgot to get scared.

"I heard all those people hooting and hollering at my naked body, but I wasn't embarrassed a bit — cause I was having a lot more fun than they were."

The bare-bottom babe was one of thousands of thrill-seekers who flocked to Nanaimo, B.C., at the invitation of Greg Brown, manager of the Bungee Zone — where customers pay $65 to leap off a platform 14 stories above the Nanaimo River with nothing but an elastic cord tied to their ankles.

"Greg wanted to stir things up a little, so he decided to have a day when people could jump for free — as long as they'd do it in their birthday suits," recalled Bungee Zone marketing manager Shannon Mathicks. "We put the word out and the next thing you know, we were getting inquiries from Japan, South Africa, all over the world."

And as the big day drew near, an array of shameless showoffs poured into Nanaimo — college kids and corporate execs, psychiatrists and their dads and take the dive of a lifetime.

They came from as far away as New York and North Carolina, camping at the gate to assure themselves a spot in the world's first buck-naked bungee fest.

But with only 120 jump slots available, hundreds of hopefuls were left permanently grounded.

Those would-be bareskivvies reluctantly joined the crowd of 2,000 spectators, who paid $2 a head to gape and gawk as the saucy stars of the show gambolled in all their glory. "There were fat guys and skinny guys, and some of those girls were really something to behold," said one middle-aged ogler.

"They just kept jumping, one after the other all day long, and I was shocked how easy it was for people to rip off their clothes in front of strangers.

"But it wasn't all that sexy, really. It was just a lot of fun to see how silly everybody looked, bouncing around up there naked as the day they

ARIES

March 21 - April 19

July will be a good time for you to shape up with exercise since you'll have self discipline. Plan to entertain at home. July 11 is an especially favorable day for any type of athletic endeavor. Short weekend trips during the month of July could enhance your romantic life. August 15 is an excellent day to start that longer vacation you've been planning. September will find you back at home concentrating on work matters and the 18th and 19th will give a boost to your goals.

600-lb. man carried to the hospital on his door

When 600-pound Ed Mallow got sick, firemen had to cut a hole in the wall of his Long Island, N.Y., home, roll him like a log onto a door and then pass him out to a waiting ambulance crew.

The 38-year-old Mallow, who lives in Medford, was then rushed to the hospital.

TAURUS

April 20 - May 20

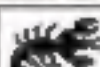
Early July will bring happy news that will set the tone for the rest of summer. July 4th weekend will trigger romance. Weekend picnics, barbecues and parties will dominate your social schedule during July. Extra money will come your way on July 7 — and you may want to use it for a short vacation beginning August 3 or 4. Romantic lures will still be at work in August. Domestic matters will keep you close to home during most of September and the 18th will be a lucky day.

GEMINI

May 21 - June 20

The first week in July will be a hectic, busy time and a bright idea could pay off for you. Your best bet is to enjoy outdoor concerts and flea markets. August is the most favorable month for you to travel — if you head for a quiet place away from distractions. By the 19th you'll find excitement — through reunions, meetings and long-distance calls. September is the perfect month for you to carry out any home improvements that you have been planning. Romance will bloom after the 15th.

CANCER



June 21 - July 22

In July, head for the nearest beach, lake, stream or pool whenever you can get away and look for an exciting development on the 18th. Extra family responsibilities are in store for you in August. Early September should be devoted to nostalgia. Look for someone from the past to reenter your life.

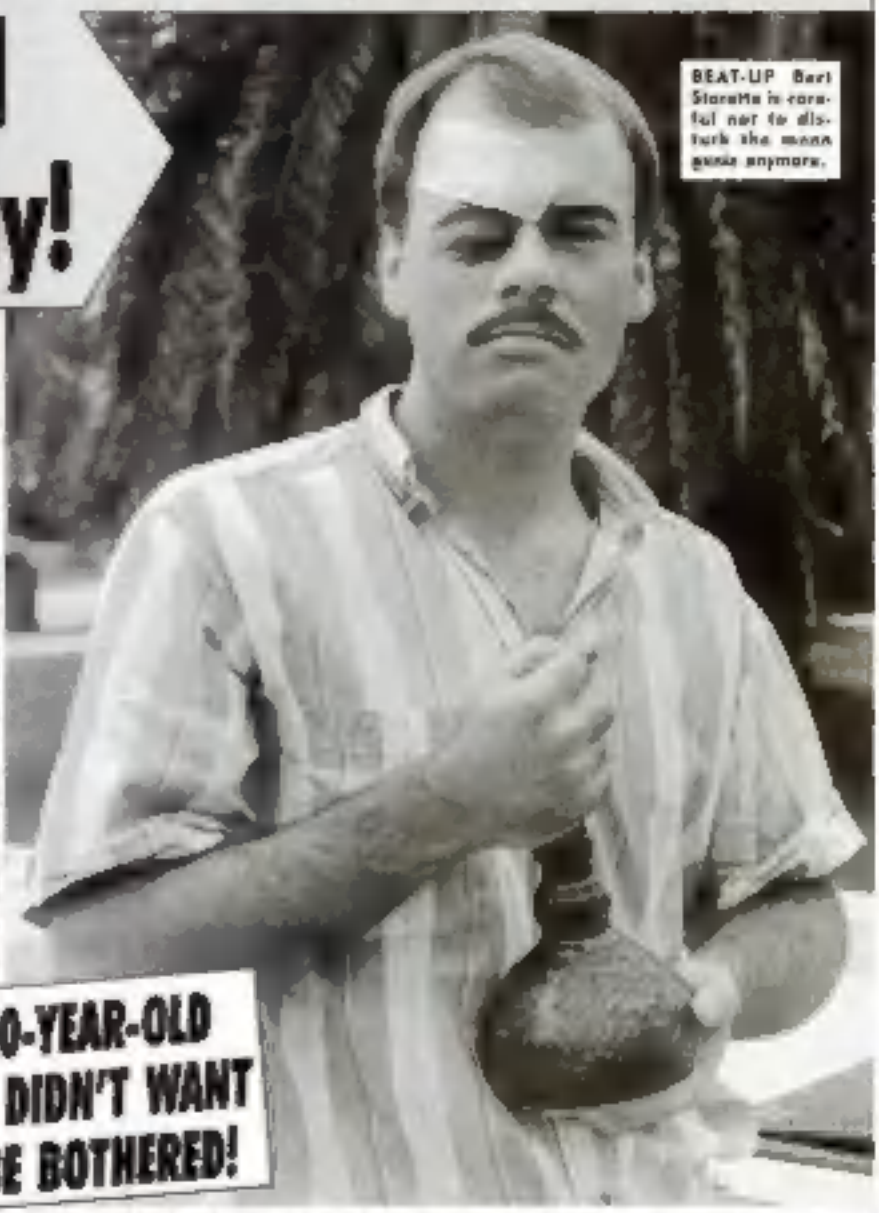
Genie pops out of a bottle — and beats the hell out of this guy!



BEAT-UP Bert Staretta is careful not to disturb the mean genie anymore.

2,000-YEAR-OLD THUG DIDN'T WANT TO BE BOTHERED!

By JOE BERGER
Staff writer

Pea-brained painter Bert Staretta staggered into a police station and informed shocked cops he'd just been beaten to a pulp — by a grumpy genie he'd summoned from a jar!

And now, the airhead artist has filed a whopping $1.3 million lawsuit against the guy who sold him the bottle — claiming the boob should have warned him that the genie was a butt-kicking fool.

"The salesman told me there was a genie in the bottle, he just never told me the genie was a 2,000-year-old thug who hates to be disturbed," groaned battered Bert, 31.

"But the minute I rubbed the bottle and the fellow popped out, I knew I was in big trouble. He looked kind of punchy and he came at me with both fists flying.

"The bum hit me like a sledgehammer and the next thing I knew I was lying there in a daze with blood dripping down my face. He said, 'If you ever bother me again, I'll kill you' — and then he vanished back into his bottle like nothing had happened."

But scoffing lawmen insist old Bert is hotter than a bedbug, despite the cuts and bruises on his noggin.

"It's awful hard to take a guy seriously when he strolls in and tells you he's just been beat up by a genie," said dumbfounded police detective Oscar de Paula.

"Maybe his girlfriend clobbered him or maybe he fell down the side of a mountain. But a genie? Give me a break."

Still, bitter Bert says he's going ahead with his suit against junk shop owner Alejandro Zoutiaris, who sold him the bottle with the belting genie inside.

"I was minding my own business, wandering around looking for an old timey clock to use as a model for one of my paintings, when I spotted that bottle and became fascinated with it," the dingbat bachelor told reporters in Buenos Aires, Argentina.

"The man in the shop said it dated back to ancient Persia and contained a genie named Cambyses who would pop from the bottle and grant you your wishes when you rubbed it and called his name.

"Well, I was pretty suspicious about why they'd have this thing in a junk shop. But I'd always wanted a bottle with a genie, you know, so I bought it and took it home."

And that's when all hell broke loose, bloodied Bert recalled.

"I rubbed the bottle like the man told me and called out Cambyses three times and here he came," said the bare-knuckled painter. "It was obvious that genie or whatever he was didn't want to be bothered, because the next thing I knew the lights went out.

"If the man in the shop had warned me, this never would have happened — and I wouldn't be suing his butt off."

But the thunderstruck junk dealer says he doesn't know diddly about any punch-drunk Persian named Cambyses.

"This whole thing is just too much," said flabbergasted Alejandro. "You mean this guy is 31 years old and he still believes in genies?"

Woman sues delivery doctor — for spanking her baby too hard!

By BEATRICE DEXTER
Correspondent

The mother of a 3-year-old girl has announced plans to sue her obstetrician, claiming that he slapped her baby's bottom so hard at delivery that the child still suffers psychological problems.

Wendy Cantrell, 31, of Dunedin, New Zealand, says little Amanda Cantrell has had trouble sleeping all her life and behaves very nervously during the day. She says specialists have told her the problems are consistent with psychological disorders.

"The least little thing scares my daughter. She jumps whenever there is any little noise," says the worried divorcee. "The only trauma she ever had in babyhood was when my doctor slapped her at birth. I noticed right from the start that she tensed and turned more than any child I had ever seen.

"I know now that she suffers from the hard slap that doctor gave her and she will live with its effects for the rest of her life."

The angry mum says she has already consulted an attorney, who has advised her not to identify the obstetrician by name until she has begun her court action.

But the lawyer told her that she has enough medical evidence to form the basis for a credible suit, she says.

The part time waitress plans to ask at least $4 million in damages from the doctor's insurance company.

"I was ready for the delivery and I remember that my baby was already whimpering before the doctor struck her," Mrs. Cantrell says. "She wasn't having any trouble breathing, so there was never any need to spank her.

"I think my daughter will be jumpy for the rest of her life because some mindless doctor walloped her needlessly at the moment of birth makes my blood boil. I want that doctor to pay for his stupidity. He made my daughter a nervous wreck."

MAD MOM. Wendy Cantrell says her daughter's life was ruined by a heavy handed doctor.

Bumbling burglar breaks into out-of-business bank!

Bumbling bandit Herbert Degrr was busted by the cops after he barged into a bank and tried to rob it — two days after the bank went broke!

Government auditor Eva Kerschek, who was working at a teller's window, politely explained to the gun-toting crook that the bank was out of business and he was out of luck.

Unfortunately for hapless Herbert, 31, the bankrupt bank's holdup alarm still worked. Eva secretly pushed the button and police in Bonn, Germany, were on the scene in minutes.

HANNIBAL LECTER IS LOOSE!

As soon as Anthony Hopkins broke from the bonds of Dr. Hannibal Lecter, he started a driving tour all over America.

Interstate cannibal alert! Dr. Hannibal Lecter is cruising the highways and byways of America, looking for a few good meals — and scaring citizens out of their skins.

"I love hotels and motels," says Anthony Hopkins, whose name and face are forever linked to the crazed character he played in The Silence of the Lambs.

"I check in and walk the streets, count the grids, finding the coffee shops, and watch the dumb TV shows. Unsolved Mysteries and Fat City. I like that," says Hopkins. And he likes spooking people, who spot him as they watch Silence and go screaming out of the theater.

You might find the sad doctor anywhere. "I like to drive around vast tracts of lost desert mountains. I drove through Wyoming in a day, crossed over the border into Montana. Most Brits drive Texas in a day. It was like an acid trip or a dream.

"Tons of front Oklahoma City are roaming. I said, 'I'll try Dallas.' Thirteen hours I drove. I crossed over to Baton Rouge, stopped at a run-down motel, watched Larry

Armless boy gets 'A' in penmanship — with HIS FEET!

By RICK ROBINSON
Staff writer

Little Jacob Skidmore was born with deformed legs and no arms. But God gave him a big heart and the determination to earn an 'A' in penmanship — by writing with his feet!

The 7-year-old first grader who lives in Shelton, Wash., just outside of Hoquiam, writes and draws by gripping a pencil or crayon between the big toe of his left foot while holding the paper firmly in place with his right foot.

Proud mom Debbie said Jacob attends regular classes at Lincolnshire Elementary School, takes swimming lessons at the local YMCA and even plays soccer in the park.

"He's really a great boy and smart," teacher Debbie Cross said. "He's doing very well and we're all very proud of what he's been able to achieve."

No one seems to know what caused Jacob's disability.

"I wasn't taking medication during pregnancy, so the cause is still a big question that remains unanswered," said his mom.

"Many people have handicaps," the loving mother of two added. "Some handicaps can be seen, while others can't. Basically, we decided to do the best we could for Jacob and the best is what he's getting. There's no telling behind those doors for him."

Man [redacted] flame thrower for backyard barbecues!

By MICKEY McGUIRE · Staff writer

As his neighbors look on in bug-eyed awe, barbecue hotshot Ernie Bruckler "grills" burgers, dogs, ribs and steaks to a mouth-watering turn in seconds — with a fiery blast from a surplus World War II flame thrower!

Bruckler

In fact, Ernie has his flash fire cookery perfected to the point where he can flame broil a barbecue feast for 100 people in only 15 minutes.

"It all began slaving over a blazing hot charcoal stove all day long," the brawny 43 year-old father of four declared. "This flame thrower didn't cost as much as a gas grill and it's faster than a microwave.

"I just have to be careful which way I point the nozzle. The first time I used it, I tried to melt a pig by just letting the flames skim over the mates of the meat. I forgot about my wood tool shed close by.

"Well, I must've squeezed the trigger a bit too hard and sent a stream of flame blasting over the pig and smack into the shed.

"The police and fire departments came, but by then there was nothing left but ashes. The fire chief fined me $300."

The notorious Chicago man says all you need to a surplus flame thrower, a good sense of distance and a gentle trigger finger.

"And you never have a good eye," he warned. "Either that or an endless supply of lumber. Sometimes my wife looks the meat out so I can get the full flame on it.

"If I was to squeeze the trigger too hard, there'd be nothing left of her but a pile of ashes."

Ernie said he got into flame thrower cooking a couple of years ago.

"I found one in a military surplus outlet, had the tanks refilled and tried it out on that pig. Well, I overdid it a bit and lost my shed. But it sure as hell cooked the pig to an inch of its life. I've been using it ever since."

I'm voting for President Bush

— 'cause he's the only candidate who ISN'T a shyster lawyer, says Ed!

PHEW. Bush is no Abe Lincoln, but at least he isn't a lawyer, says Ed!

I'm madder than Bill Clinton without a bimbo in his bed over a story I just read about how all the presidential candidates are lawyers — except for Pres Bush!

What this tells me, folks, is that we have no choice but to re-elect the President in November.

In fact, if George Bush lost his marbles and became a stark raving maniac we would STILL have to vote for him. There's really no choice between a crazy president and a lawyer — you've got to go with the lesser of two evils about this great country of ours.

We'd be better off electing one of those wimpy and kooky presidents rather than a lawyer, for crying out loud!

No way one of those fast talking crooks could steal more from us than a sneaky lawyer.

But what has me pig-fucking mad is that Bill Clinton isn't the only lawyer in the family. His pushy wife Hillary — a twisted attorney who "fired Bush" at Watergate is one greedy lawyer at the White House we need like a hole in the head.

And what if Catherine Crier gets caught with her pants down again and hates the campaign trail?

The Democrats have Jerry Brown but we do not trust another lawyer, for Pete's sake.

Now George Bush has made some BIG mistakes — but going to law school wasn't one of 'em.

Let's face it. Nicest man portrayed of all lawyers you low-down weasels who'd sue their own mother for a buck.

In a mockery of fact, a recent survey published by the Legal Watchdog Foundation said that by a 20 to 1 margin, Americans think lawyers are scumbag, schemming, lying, yellow-bellied, cheating, blustering blowhards who worship the almighty buck above all else including this wonderful country of ours.

President Bush may not be Abraham Lincoln but at least he isn't an lawyer — and that makes him our only choice for the White House, by jimmy!

Hold-up man's bizarre weapon: An AIDS-tainted needle!

An armed robber held up a fast-food restaurant with a deadly weapon — an AIDS-infected needle!

"That's the first time we've ever heard of that as a weapon," said a shocked police officer in Tulsa, Okla., where the crime took place.

The crook went to the restaurant one night and asked to fill out an employment application, pretending to volunteer. While there, he took out a hypodermic needle and passed a note to an employee saying he was HIV-positive and wanted access to the safe.

The man escaped with an undetermined amount of cash.

Failures who found fame & fortune!

Robert Kennedy flunked third grade. Walt Disney was told he had no talent.

Yet these and other famous failures eventually went on to great success, points out George Cohen, who uses examples like these to teach high school students that they can succeed if they want to.

Cohen, a human relations specialist says:

"We want to teach kids not to be embarrassed by failure. Most of the time we have second or third chances to turn failure into success." Cohen cited these examples of famous failures who later made good.

Robert Kennedy not only flunked third grade, but had trouble taking care of his paper route when he was a boy.

Thomas Edison tried more than 900 materials — and failed — before he found a workable filament for his electric light bulb.

Walt Disney took samples of his cartoons to several publishing companies when he was beginning his career ... and was told he had no talent!

Could it start a war between the fruity dictators?

FIDEL. A man in love

Castro swipes Saddam Hussein's gay lover!

Shocked cronies say Fidel [illegible] to marry the pansy playboy!

By JOE BERGER

Tough-talking tyrant Fidel Castro wants the world to think he's all man, but the kooky Cuban kingpin is actually a flaming fairy who frolics with guys boys by the dozen — and wants to marry a pansy playboy that he stole from Saddam Hussein!

Fidel swiped Saddam's boyfriend right out from under the Iraqi's nose — just a few months before Saddam's gay pal was to be married in a lavish ceremony.

But Castro's affair turned out to be a disaster because the Cuban dictator's new love — Saddam's ex-boyfriend — left him for another man.

Now he spends his time cruising up to three skinny little punks that no self-respecting man would be caught dead with.

The fun-loving Castro crazily spilled the beans on his old boss and buddy after a row with the ex-pimp potentate forced him to flee to Mexico City two weeks ago.

"There was a time when Fidel had some of the most beautiful women you've ever seen hanging around his mansion," exasperated Enrique recalled.

"But the last couple of years, he started spending all his time with men — and I believed they kept getting younger and younger.

"Then one night I accidentally caught him in the pool with one of his little friends and I nearly had a heart attack. I thought for a second I was as good as dead, but instead of having me shot, he just slipped into his robe and asked me to join them for a drink."

Castro introduced his pow der-puff pal as Terry Hammell, the French jet-setter who'd been Saddam Hussein's sweaty sweetie during last year's Persian Gulf War, Weekly World

SADDAM. A lover in love

News has learned.

Fidel met Terry in March 1991, publishing a series of black-bound photos of Saddam hugging and kissing with his lisping wristed lover-boy.

"Fidel was very proud of the fact that he'd stolen Terry from Saddam, and he bragged about it over and over again," exiled Enrique told a reporter. "He kept asking Terry, 'Who do you think is more handsome, me or that fat Arab?'

"And Terry would bat his eyes and give Fidel a big kiss and assure him that he was much better looking than Hussein. It was a very sickening scene."

And as the months that followed, Enrique watched fruity Fidel cavort with an endless string of fuzzy-cheeked flits.

"But Terry was his favorite," said the sexy strongman's former cohort. "He'd talk about Terry like a schoolboy with his first crush, and he kept saying he was going to marry the kid.

"But Fidel's so flaky I couldn't figure out if he really loved Terry — or if he just loved the idea that he'd pilfered Saddam Hussein's pansy."

LOOKING like an overinflated water balloon, Vladimir Rastorovich is confined to a stretcher in a nursing home

JELLYFISH MAN

HE HASN'T GOT A BONE IN HIS BODY!

by BEATRICE DEXTER
Special correspondent

Shocked doctors have discovered one of the strangest cases in the history of medicine — a 42-year-old man who hasn't got a bone in his entire body!

The human oddity, Vladimir Rastorovich, was found in a nursing home in an isolated Russian province where he has lived since his birth.

Word of the man's existence reached specialists in Paris and Rome not long after the political collapse of the Soviet Union.

"We heard there was a living man who had no bones at all," said Dr. Hermine Gentleman, a Paris orthopedic surgeon.

"We immediately sent a team to see him and discovered that reports about his condition were absolutely accurate.

"Mr. Rastorovich is almost like a human water balloon. His body organs, muscles, nerves and circulatory system are contained within his skin, but they are not attached to or protected by any solid structure. The patient literally 'flows' like a giant shapeless mass.

"When we first saw him he was lying on a stretcher and the poor man looked much like a spineless jellyfish. 'He's just a puddle of lard,' he said.

According to Russian doctors who have cared for him, Rastorovich is in excellent health despite his bizarre problems.

The man is bedridden and cannot move on his own because he has no skeletal structure. He is of normal intelligence and is in reasonably good spirits considering his restricted life-style, according to the experts.

His caretakers say they cannot carry the case for fear his skin will burst from the pressure of his body weight. And Rastorovich has difficulty breathing because pressure on the lungs from the weight of overlying skin and muscles, doctors report.

"He was brought to the nursing home right after his birth in 1948 and has remained under constant care since then," said Dr. Gentleman, who is writing an article on the man for a French medical journal. "He was not expected to live at all — but he has survived in remarkably good condition. His doctors say there's no reason he can't live to a normal old age in spite of his rare problem."

THREE SIMPLE TRICKS TO IMPROVE YOUR MEMORY!

Ancient manuscripts reveal that the wise men of Greece and Rome had mastered remarkable memory tricks which you, too, can use in everyday life.

These ancient techniques were discovered by world famous memory expert and psychologist Dr. Robert G. Crowder, while researching through centuries-old writings.

"Many of these are on old Latin parchments and were passed on by obscure teachers," said Dr. Crowder.

"These teachers' names have been lost forever — but they did leave us these astonishingly effective memory techniques."

Dr. Crowder said that he discovered three basic memory tricks in the writings:

1. The Method of Loci. "Take the objects you want to remember and picture them, one by one, in a series of locations.

"For instance, if you have a grocery list to remember, picture the things on it in the houses on your street.

"If you need carrots, picture a bunch on the porch of the house on the corner."

2. The Method of Association. "Take two different things and associate them in a mental picture that combines them in an unusual way.

"If you want to remember something that has to do with football and automobiles, picture an automobile with a huge football inside."

3. The Method of Names and Faces. "Associate some prominent feature of the person's face with his name.

"For example, my name is Crowder. If I had a big bone, you might get a mental picture of a crowd with big bones to remember my name."

Dr. Crowder says these tricks were widely used among wise men of old because they didn't have the easy recording methods we employ today.

Space-Age Polymers Works On Any Finish
Nicks and Scratches Disappear
Make Faded Paint Look New Again

You've seen it advertised on national TV. You've seen it advertised in the country's leading magazines and newspapers. It's the most amazing car wax or car polish to hit the market in years! What makes this new product so special? Color Smart™ is color coordinated to match the color of your car. That's right. This incredible new polish is an advanced formula actually comes in lots of different colors, designed to enhance your car's brilliance. They may sound like a very unusual idea at first, but you won't believe what it can do for your car!

WAX PROBLEMS

The problem with ordinary car wax is that it's designed to simply cover over your car's dried paint. What this means, of course, is that if your car has any nicks or scratches, you end up with brighter nicks and scratches. And if you've ever tried waxing over faded paint, you know what a waste of time that is!

PAINT JOB IN A BOTTLE!

Color Smart™ has been scientifically formulated with costly space-age polymers, silicones, and imported wax pigments (colorants). Not only will it cause faded paint look like again and nicks and scratches disappear right before your eyes, but you'll have the most brilliant, longest lasting shine you've ever seen! It's truly amazing. Like a paint job in a bottle!

LIMITED TIME OFFER

A highly advanced polish like this one would normally sell for as much as $20.00 per bottle! But now, for a limited time, if you hesitated before today, you can buy Color Smart™ for just $9.95. It must be the best polish you've ever used or simply return it for a full refund of the purchase price. You absolutely must try it to

My girlfriend will worship the ground I walk on — OR ELSE!

Confidential

Dear Dottie Has to say: The lingerie was GORGEOUS! Call me when you get to Florida and I'll treat you to that martini-and-lobster dinner!

Dear Worried Mom in Derby: If a 5-year-old child said that to me I'd wash his mouth out with soap ... twice!

Dear Mortified in Norfolk: Don't worry about it, but figuring that bargain while giving a book report is kind of a class in one of the perils of being a 11-year-old boy!

Dear Heartbroken in Gridley: Off a letter sent, you OD'd a pork barrel on.

Dear Children of North Syracuse: It's really none of your business but if you must know, it takes a week.

Dottie will answer your letters — good call a she it is, and write a her, c/o Weekly World News, 600 South East Coast Ave., Lantana, Fla. 33462.

Dear Dottie: I know you think men were put on Earth to serve women but I'm here to tell you that the opposite is true. Take my girlfriend, for instance. She does what I tell her to do with a vengeance. If I want a breakfast, she fetches it.

When I want some lovin', she gives it to me. When I say clean house, she cleans house. In short, she'll worship the ground I walk on — or else. Put that in your pipe and smoke it, pinhead.

I'm living proof that all your theory talk about men being stupid servants for women is hogwash. — All Men in D.C.

Dear All Men: No woman in her right mind would hesitate to do any other guy. (I only wish that little slacker is holding me gainful service ... cause that's the first shit she had a nervous breakdown and CURED to be a man.

I'm treated like doggie doo 'cause I own a German car!

Dear Dottie: All my friends have stopped talking to me because I drive a German car at a time when American auto workers are losing their jobs because of poor sales. I really do resent this, Dottie, because I believe that I have the right to buy any damn car I please. Don't you agree? — Angry in Detroit

Dear Angry: You certainly do have the right to buy the car of your choice. You also have the right to be shunned and hated by patriotic Americans who want to pull our economy out of a free fall and keep our country strong!

I dress like a hooker but he won't give me the eye!

Dear Dottie: I'm a high school student and I have a crush on this guy who doesn't even know I exist. I wear skimpy shirts and blouses and even make gorgeous faces and tongue gestures to get his attention but he still ignores me. I really admire and respect your opinions, Dottie. How can I make this guy see that I've got the hots for him? — Desperate to Haste Ye

Dear Desperate: If you really want to get this boy's attention cut your hair, take a young lady and look like a prostitute for three or four days, maybe even get arrested in front of your parents, flunk out of school and have your mother and father committed to state mental institutions. That usually does the trick!

My hard-drinking daddy is living on borrowed time!

Dear Dottie: My father drives drunk every day of his life. Just the other day he was speeding through a school zone and almost rear-ended a bus. Please tell me how I can reason with him before somebody gets killed. — Concerned in Tucson

Dear Concerned: I can think of a million reasons why people shouldn't drive drunk but the most compelling one is this: I could be the next person one of those drunken idiots hits!

Hey Dottie! Would you like to be somebody else?

Dear Dottie: If you could be anybody in the world other than yourself, who would you be — and why? — Curious in New Haven

Dear Curious: My own sister Theresa Pfeiffer — because she looks, thinks and acts just like me!

Ask the Countess

Will my dead mother EVER give me a break?

Dear Countess: My mother nagged me every day of my life and even though she died in 1980 she's still nagging me from beyond the grave. Every night when I go to bed I hear her awful, scratchy voice telling me that my husband is a bum, I dress like a slob, I don't keep my house clean enough and anything else she can think about to pick on. I'm a grown woman and I've had enough. Please help me, Countess. How can I make her stop? — Desperate in Los Angeles

Jet-setting bachelor Reggie Philpott III is a filthy rich snob who has everything a man could want — and he does not plan to share it with anyone!

"People of my class aren't expected to do anything but enjoy life," said the born rich braggart who has never enjoyed a day in his life. The pampered 33-year-old playboy surrounds himself with beautiful women, expensive cars and luxurious homes on the coast of Spain, the French Riviera and outside Paris.

"People who say you can't buy happiness never walked in my shoes," said the arrogant self-professed millionaire, who inherited a fortune from his grandfather, a Dallas oilBaron who died seven years ago. "Money kept me everything I want, including slick lawyers who make sure I don't pay taxes like working class fools. Money has bought me women, expensive toys and friends — lots of friends."

Reggie's outrageous remarks came during a press conference at which he won a $1 million jackpot at a Caribbean resort casino.

"I have never given a dime to charity and never will," he said. "Those people are there to be poor and hungry. Helping them would upset society's balance.

"I know I should have more compassion for those poor devils who have to work 9 to 5 just to pay the mortgage, but I don't."

Reggie and pal pal Roxanne Pitkin had just flown to the Caribbean casino from Paris where he hit the jackpot on the second dollar he put in the slot machine. "I mean the fools really do get rocked," he laughed.

Fortunately not many people have the upbringing and manners to be special people like us, and that's good for America and the world. If it was otherwise, who would fight the wars, work in the fields, work on the assembly lines and pay taxes?"

Reggie laughs at stupid slobs who still believe there exists such public officials.

"Those of us in the privileged upper class call the shots in politics and everything else — make no mistake about that," Reggie said. "If our riches start to diminish, we simply start another war and make a neat killing there.

"Don't kid yourself, money talks and it speaks loud and clear to cops, politicians and friends. I can buy anything I want — anything."

Globe-trotting Reggie appreciates the fact that most people know their place and fawn to the rich and famous. "They realize they don't have what it takes to be one of us," said Reggie as he hoarded his

The 6 different types of dog personalities!

Dog temperaments can be divided into six distinct categories, says top dog expert Mordecai Siegal:

NERVOUS DOG — He's the most troublesome of the six types. Leave house and return in just 15 minutes, and he's so excited he'll wet the floor.

He's afraid of traffic, of going outdoors, of strangers and of other dogs.

SHY DOG - The second most troublesome dog. He runs when someone knocks at the door and hides when a stranger comes into the house. Shyness in dogs frequently leads to to aggressiveness.

STUBBORN DOG — Some actually throw temper tantrums. Some won't walk on a leash if they don't want to. When they're unwilling to cooperate, they'll likely growl.

SENATE DOG - You find these mostly in the bigger breeds. They sleep much of the time, they're lovable, sensitive and do not usually jump even to a harsh command.

AGGRESSIVE DOG — Can range from pushy to downright vicious. They bully people and other animals. They are very protective of their territory.

RESPONSIVE DOG — He tends to be in the majority of dogs kept as pets.

These are the ones easiest to train and the friendliest.

WOMAN JAILED FOR PLANT ABUSE!

By BEATRICE DEXTER
Correspondent

Housewife Annamarie Tasca has been sentenced to six months in prison — for plant abuse!

The woman, 36, was arrested after the president of a horticultural society in the city of Cali, Columbia, complained to authorities that she had killed a total of 127 plants and trees over a period of eight months.

Police arrested the mother of three and brought her before a judge charging her with wilful destruction of plant life. The prosecution showed evidence of plants with wilted yellow leaves, shrivelled stems and snapped off, mutilated foliage.

"This woman has starved her plants, she has allowed them to die of thirst, she has pulled or burned them to death and she has amputated their stems and branches," said attorney Ajamu Rivera, who prosecuted the case.

"We confiscated plants from her home that were obviously allowed to die slowly over months and months. A terrible crime not against life as we know it, but from lack of light, lack of attention, overwatering. Plant lovers in our community are outraged and I don't blame them. We need to show people you can't abuse a living thing this way — even if it is a plant."

The sentencing case is the first in which a person has been jailed for harming plants but local plant enthusiasts argue that in this case the sentence was extreme and that the woman received is an example from ruthless plant abuse.

They say the woman actually bought plants just so she could watch them die.

"I told her one of my prize tropical trees had fell and she took it home and killed it," said Marina Corona, a local nursery owner. "Two months later she was back trying to buy another. I asked her what had happened to the first and she laughed. She said, 'I think I must have a black thumb — all my plants die.'

"I told her I wasn't going to sell her any more plants ever but I knew she was buying plants all over town and laughing about how she was going to kill them."

At attorney for Mrs Tasca says the woman is the innocent victim of crazed plant lovers who devote all their time to cuddling plants. He insists that his client was no more cruel or unfeeling when it came to her plants than the average householder, but rather that she was misdiagnosed when it came to plant care.

But a judge in a criminal court agreed with the prosecution and gave Mrs Tasca a sentence of six months in jail followed by community service at a plant nursery after her release.

"In this day of environmental awareness we have to take responsibility for preserving plant life," the judge told Mrs Tasca. "Your uncaring attitude and wanton cruelty is going to be punished and I hope this will send a warning message to others who take pleasure in destroying our precious green habitat."

Gays CAN go straight if they really want to!

In spite of what militant homosexuals claim, gays who really want to go straight can, say human sexuality experts! These same researchers claim to have achieved reversal rates of more than 50 percent in homosexuals.

"I don't believe that homosexuality is something inborn or natural," said Dr. Heinrich Burkart, a German sexual therapist. "And I don't believe that it cannot be treated. I've counseled over 1,000 male homosexuals in psychiatric consultation, and I know that they're not born that way.

"In a large majority of cases, the homosexuality is the result of adverse parent-child relationships," said Dr. Burkart.

A similar conclusion was reached by another highly respected authority. "I can absolutely confirm Dr. Burkart's findings that a highly motivated homosexual who wants to change can often do so quickly and easily," declared French sex therapist Dr. Helene Ballinger.

"It's pure nonsense that homosexuality is permanent and cannot be cured ... despite what the widespread belief would seem to be among homosexual activists," said Dr. Ballinger.

"Clinical evidence shows that 60 percent of those who want to change can, especially if they're caught at an early age.

"The early indications of homosexual tendencies in a male child include an aversion to rough sports and to competition of all kinds," she said.

"The boy whose buddies are all girls is usually the most suspicious, along with the youngsters who repeatedly dressed up in his mother's clothing.

"Once or twice is all right, but if it happens more than that he should probably be seen by a professional," said Dr. Ballinger.

"Very often," added Dr. Burkart, "homosexual behavior can be completely and permanently modified."

GIANT HOROSCOPE

For week of
Wed, Apr. 15 — Tues, Apr. 21

By Countess Sophia Sebek

ARIES
Mar. 21-Apr. 19

You get a cheerful earful!
Take the for-out advice you get from the creep you always said you wouldn't touch with a 10-foot pole.
It sounds shaky, but it'll work!
You'll get loads of overtime — and oodles of appreciation from the coworker who helps you spend all that extra loot.
Handle the week's dull parts — like chores — with a smile because a round-the-clock weekend's due you.

TAURUS
Apr. 20-May 20

Money grows on trees!
Your green thumb is the ticket to a great little home business.
Get to work nursing and germinating cuttings and dozens of blooming plants. A little investment in soil, pots, a couple of "mother" plants, and a sunny window — and you've got a money-making nursery.
Romance has you longing cool, but by Friday you'll be able to come out with all kinds of racy remarks.

GEMINI
May 21-June 20

Happiness is spelled c-a-n-d-y!
If a big box of chocolate isn't your most favorite thing in the world, it sure is your lucky's.
Indulge this passion! Those wild, pillow-talking dreams will come true after 11 p.m. Saturday!
A crank call starts you thinking.
Running errands for the homebound lets you make some spare change, and doing a good deed makes you feel pretty good, too.

CANCER
June 21-July 22

Go fish!
Bait your hook for a date which is floating around in the matching.
It'll offer you just what you can't refuse — money and people looking up to you.
Watch your p's and q's in the interview! This is the big time, kid!
You've feeling especially frisky and your sweetie loves this side of you. Take advantage of it and get some extra fun and games.

LEO
July 23-Aug. 22

A windfall lands on your lap!
That wallet you stumble over at the store has no I.D. What's in it is not to be conveyed at — and it'll be yours after a month's wait.
A long distance friendship brings warmth into your life. Keep it perking with funny cards you make out of old magazines and newspapers.
Life on the homestead blossoms and someone gets cheerful again when promised reservations start.

VIRGO
Aug. 23-Sept. 22

The check's in the mail!
That refund will be ready to be spent by Friday.
Your shopping spree should include something that gives you a rich feeling — and something that makes you grin like a kid.
A little fling at romance lifts your spirits, even if comes second-hand from a movie.
A clean house makes you feel ready and secure. So get to work!

LIBRA
Sept. 23-Oct. 23

Make love, not war!
You're blessed with buckets of charm. Use it and down whoever who's been sniping at you.
This promises to be the start of something interesting in the romantic field, too, as long as you keep your rose-colored glasses on.
Don't look wistfully at that special item. Start a piggy bank just for it today. Six months of saving change makes the down payment!

SCORPIO
Oct. 24-Nov. 21

Give a gift of time!
You've got an oldster in the family who thinks a day with you is just right! Show them a good time — reminiscing.
You'll be rewarded in the will! That bothers you — and all the other relatives — could will come to you for sure.
Get your sweetie to dreaming with you. It'll do delicious things for your love life!

SAGITTARIUS
Nov. 22-Dec. 21

Go with the flow!
Put your feet up and stop fussing for a day or so.
A change of pace will make the rest of the week a breeze.
Get all the contest entry blanks you've been clipping and send them in. It's silly not to take advantage of these opportunities to load up on the good things of life.
Lie low in the field of love. Let your sweetie do the stalking!

CAPRICORN
Dec. 22-Jan. 19

Try a little tenderness!
You can count on winning points in the game of romance if you act a little soggy.
Hold hands. Whisper sweet nothings. Snuggle. Tickle. It works!
Put your craftiest efforts into a big name contest in a magazine.
A winning ticket has your name on it — if you get your postcard in the mail now.
Movie dinner for a yummy treat.

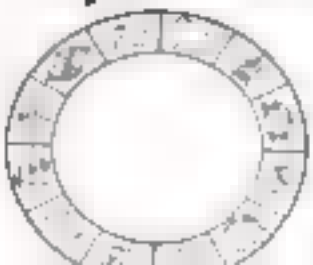
Your or some dances' music and then your feet take you where they

PISCES
Feb. 19-Mar. 20

Be happy! Don't worry!
Nothing gets under your skin this week.
It's no problem for you to be cool when it comes to asking for some lovin', as no more Mr. Nice Guy or Ms. Nice Gal — for once!
You can ask for a loan without getting red in the face on Tuesday.
Act big — just like you don't give a hoot — and you'll get even more

If your birthday is this week . . .



Wed., Apr. 15 — Tues., Apr. 21

Dreams come true all year long!
You're charming — and you know it — and that charm alters who's doing exactly what you want, like lending you money.
You influence someone whose love you want, while someone else is a distance is influencing you in an exciting way.

Your favorite color reveals your personality

Your favorite color reveals your character, says a pioneer in the field of color study.

Faber Birren, author of 24 books about color, said, "It is possible to make fairly accurate judgments about the meaning of color preferences and their revelations of personality traits."

Here is a color test to find out factors of your personality you may never before have suspected.

Almighty choose your overall favorite color from the nine hues listed here — and read the results below:

BLUE This is the color of introversion, of a person with depth, opinions, a will to live his own way. You are somewhat aggressive, impulsive, perhaps ethical, surely quick to release your feelings and emotions. You have many ups and downs in your feelings.

To you, life is meant to be happy, and when it isn't, you are confused and upset. You hate uncertainty, are quick to judge people, quick to form opinions and boldly express them.

ORANGE Generally you are good natured, likable and social; you make friends easily with an easy smile and a talent for small talk.

Chances are better than even that you will not marry; and if you do, your marriage will be one of light affection.

You prefer frivolousness and companionship to adoration. A natural born politician, you shine at any occupation in which you meet groups of people. You seldom indulge in very deep thought or severe discipline.

YELLOW You have great expectations and diligently seek self fulfillment. Yellow is the hue of optimism — you have a superior mind and you use it. Your manners may be aloof but you are not shy. You may seem casually but an awkward moment, but you never get rattled.

In many respects you are a loner. You are good at forming plans but may not be energetic enough to carry them out. You think things through clearly are logical and consistent.

GREEN You are sure to be constant in your ways, persevering, scholastic and respectable. You have a good balance. Outspoken, with a love of freedom, those who like green are generally social and live in a good neighborhood, have many friends and belong to social organizations. You tend to resist change. You like parties and you like to eat — and may gain weight as an adult.

Your social standing, financial position and reputation are all of top importance to you.

You undoubtedly seek admiration of companionships and affection.

PURPLE A fastidious person, you have good taste, dress well and probably are a connoisseur of good food and wine. You are poised and sympathetic and considered. Though inside you may feel lonely. You would perish without love and admiration.

The man who likes blue-green may be conceited, sophisticated, well groomed, witty and sarcastic. The woman who likes this hue has a remarkable sense of fashion, is often mysterious — and ever charming, with exceptional appeal to men.

BLACK You want a selfish world and a calm life and you want your affairs to be orderly and neat.

An introvert, you are deliberate, introspective but perhaps not too intellectual. Steady and a hard worker, you will probably be successful and make a lot of money.

Though you have a tendency to be egotistical and opinionated, you know how to accept responsibility and obligation. You are ambitious in others and have a secure hold on your emotions.

BROWN Two types of people like purple. The first is sensitive, with deep insight, temperamental and creative with meaningful things to do and passionate devotion in them.

The second type admires artists, mystics and unique people. This type feels there should be gentility, courtesy and affection everywhere, and no war, disease, or poverty.

Some lovers of purple are charming and adoring patrons of the arts and others are true artists themselves.

BROWN You are supple in your ways, persistent and tenacious. Conscientious in all you do, you are also practical and more likely to accept than to give.

You also tend to be frugal, that you have an aversion quality and never seem to change.

Though your brain is not lightning quick, you do have the ability to think things through.

You assume responsibilities, are shrewd, rational and actualistic. You have no time for anything fanciful, but you are very persistent.

PINK Two types of people like pink — the person who has led a very sheltered life and the person who, grown older, seeks to regain the innocence of childhood. In pink there is affection, delicacy and an inner conviction often naive, that life should be a gentle affair devoid of trials and tribulations.

Younger people who like pink sometimes hold to the illusion that life should be consistently romantic and generous. Pink is a gentle form of red, and somewhat rich — commonly preferred among women in the upper or middle class.

Oldsters arrested for NOISY SEX!

WHEN Pamela and Frank make love, the windows rattle and the walls shake, according to these sleep-starved neighbors.

'Sorry about the neighbors, but at least we can still do it,' boasts hubby, 75

By SCOTTY PAUL

Hot-blooded oldsters Frank and Pamela Smith were busted after their sleep-starved neighbors complained to cops that the couple's nightly lovemaking rattles the windows and shakes the walls a block away.

The frustrated neighbors asked a judge to quiet down the wild and crazy couple so their cranky girl might sleep. Four of the 12 angry neighbors live right next door to the Smiths but the others are within a block away but they can still hear the screams of passion erupting from the elderly lovebirds' bedroom.

"I'm sorry about that we've disturbed our neighbors. But I'm also proud that we can still make love," said Frank, 75. "We never know when it will become lost."

Deep in the once quiet Los Angeles neighborhood, the people's screams of pleasure can be heard above their air conditioning, their TV and even their stereo — with the windows closed.

"They're irresistible. You'd have to hear them to believe it," said their next door neighbor. "I called the cops the first time because I thought they were killing each other.

"There is certainly no lull between these two. At least five nights a week they are rolling around in the sack and now it's continuous."

Frank and Pamela, 70, thought their neighbors were exaggerating the noise until the cops showed up. Later that night their lovemaking was [illegible]

METAL VIRGIN MARY CRIES TEARS OF BLOOD!

MIRACLE TEARS! This Virgin Mary has been documented crying human blood.

An amazing metal image of the Madonna in a humble home in Italy has "wept" tears of blood three times — and laboratory tests confirm the blood is actually human.

Now awestruck villagers of Casapulla near Naples are waiting anxiously for yet another supernatural sign from Our Lady.

The holy figure, made of shiny pewter, has been ordered sealed under glass by high officials of the Catholic church.

But even after it was sealed, witnesses watched in disbelief as bright red tears of blood formed right below their eyes and flowed down the Madonna's cheeks.

The strange story began in December, when Rosalia Natale says she heard a gentle voice speak to her, saying, "Hail Mary, I cry in the name of the Lord ..." At the very moment she saw scarlet drops appear in the eyes of the pewter image.

She called neighbors who thought she must be seeing things. But then the blood appeared again.

"I saw it with my own eyes," said building engineer Giuseppe Castillo. "There were six other people there besides me. I saw a drop of blood run down one cheek."

When a test confirmed the blood was human, the Archbishop of Capua ordered the Madonna sealed.

Then just 12 days later the "miracle" happened again.

Said the priest, Father Andrea Mutarelli: "We can't explain this. These people are completely trustworthy, but the church must be prudent. Now we can only wait to see what will happen."

Watching soap operas can save your life!

Watching TV soap operas is actually good for depressed people — and can even save the lives of potential suicides.

These shows enable people suffering from severe emotional stress to forget their own pain and "learn that other people have problems also," explained New York psychologist Dr. H.L. Levine.

Tuning into the soaps fills a void for unhappy people and teaches them to become involved in other people's lives, noted Dr. Levine.

[illegible] new reason to live," she said.

She cited the case of one patient, who was leading "an empty, barren life. Her husband was dead, she had no friends and no job. She was a potential suicide risk."

But then this woman became interested in the trials and tribulations of some soap character. "It was incredible. She stopped dwelling on her pain. Soap operas gave her life meaning."

MAN SWIPES PET PIG AND BARBECUES IT!

By RICK DONOVAN
Staff writer

South Florida schoolgirl Christie Favorite had high hopes that her pig Sparkle would do well in the St. Lucie County Fair. But grass-mower Mark Whalen had his own plans for the little porker — he stole it and barbecued it for his 11th birthday party!

And Whalen probably would have gotten away with his cruel deed if he had kept his yap shut. But someone heard him bragging about his kill and tipped off Christie's dad. In no time at all, the big-mouth was behind bars charged with grand theft.

Florida girl had raised porker to enter in the county fair!

"I had almost given up on anybody being caught," declared Jimmy Favorite, Christie's dad. "I was hoping with all the publicity it received that someone would run their mouth about it. Sure enough, he told the wrong person."

St. Lucie County Sheriff's Department spokesman Mark Weinberg said that after his arrest, Whalen admitted taking the pig because he needed it for a barbecue to celebrate his birthday, but said he didn't know it was a little girl's fair entry.

Weinberg said Whalen spotted the pig while mowing grass near the Favorites' home in rural Fort Pierce. Authorities said Whalen admitted killing the pig by bashing its skull with a hammer and a shovel and then slitting its throat before dragging it off to the barbecue pit.

The crime was discovered when Jimmy Favorite arrived home and discovered that Sparkle was missing from her pen. He looked around and found a trail of blood leading away from the pen.

Christie was devastated by Sparkle's obvious fate and she vowed never to rest until whoever took her pig was behind bars. When she learned that Whalen had been nabbed and had confessed to the crime, she cried.

"I'd like for him to stay in jail a while," the seventh-grader said. "I'd like him to think about what he did."

Whalen was released from jail after he reportedly had paid Favorite $1,000 in restitution, which he had already done.

CAPTURED ALIEN IS 3 FEET TALL — AND 500 YEARS OLD!

EXCLUSIVE INTERVIEW

His IQ is 400 and he speaks every language on Earth!

By MARC KERN
Special Correspondent

A space alien that was captured after it landed a gigantic UFO on the deck of a Navy aircraft carrier last August looks like a child of only 3 or 4 — but is actually 500 years old!

That's the word from a highly placed CIA source who says that the alien is currently being held in a secret facility in Washington D.C., and that the CIA pro-vide mankind with the technological know-how to make interstellar flights of our own.

"This is a staggering development in our study of extraterrestrials," said the source, who risked his career and possibly even his life to blow the lid off the story and provide pictures of the alien and its starship.

"The alien is highly intelligent and in spite of being incarcerated, it is said to be most cooperative and talking freely with our agents and other powers-that-be, including President George Bush.

"It's easy to get carried away with information like this and make crazy claims about the proceedings, but I don't with the technology to explore and colonize distant planets in our galaxy.

The creature describes itself as being 500 years old and if the alien is telling the truth, it might be able to help us find the keys to perfect health and immortality — or at least how to live to be 200 years old.

As the NEWS and other major newspapers reported previously, the drama began last August 12 when a saucer-shaped starship materialized over the USS Yorktown while it was on maneuvers in the Pacific Ocean.

When efforts to establish contact failed, Navy jet interceptors forced the UFO to land and escorted it, like a giant bird, to the carrier for a landing. At the time, sources said that a crew of four space aliens was taken into custody.

THE ALIEN landed his saucer-shaped starship on the USS Yorktown while it was on maneuvers in the Pacific last August 12.

But the CIA insider has since confirmed that the starship was piloted by a single extraterrestrial who has glowing white skin, a bald, pointed head and huge, black eyes.

He says the alien does not appear to have any special powers but it is highly intelligent and clearly comes from an advanced society and culture.

the source. "It tests out with an IQ in the 190 range and from what I understand, it speaks every language and dialect on Earth fluently. The alien [illegible] aboard on a diet of [illegible] and [illegible] milk which it drinks by the gallon."

The CIA source says unable to venture further reports that the creature's spaceship was taken to Cape Canaveral for study although a spate of UFO sightings in the area since August strongly suggests that the craft is there — and it's [illegible] to jump it.

Officials in the Navy and White House spokesmen will neither confirm nor deny the interview report.

But insiders privately admit that "something big is happening" and anticipate an official announcement of some kind before the September elections.

"President Bush will almost certainly have something to say about the starship and alien before voters go to the polls next fall," said one White House source. "If he personally comes clean and tells the whole story, it might very well help him win the election."

Doctor Tips on Chest Pain and Clogged Arteries

(SPECIAL FEATURE) If you regularly have chest pain, tingling arms or cold leg pain...your arteries may be clogged...and you may be on your way to a heart attack or stroke. BEAT FATIGUE!

Put a heating pad on your liver — and feel a million bucks!

By MARK STEELE / [illegible]

You can beat fatigue and have more energy and pep than you ever dreamed of by warming your liver with a heating pad twice a day.

You'll feel better fast. And unlike dangerous and risky drugs, the heating-pad cure for weariness and fatigue is totally safe and effective.

"I know it sounds too good to be true but heating pads work," declared Dr. Hermann Kruger, who has studied the healing powers of heating pads since 1968.

"All you have to do is warm your liver with the pad twice a day every day, for 30 minutes. You'll enjoy the break from your daily activities. And before you know it, you'll be living life to the fullest with pep and energy to spare.

"I've [illegible] this treatment for many of my [illegible] patients," he added. "It's better than magic. It really works like a charm."

Kruger heard about the [illegible] heating pads and pep from one of his colleagues. He says he was skeptical at first, but changed his mind after the [illegible] independent research.

"The liver helps the body digest sugar and as everybody knows, sugar is what gives us the energy to do all the things we want to do," said the doctor, who maintains a private practice in Frankfurt, Germany.

"The heating pad stimulates the liver, which helps it to digest more sugar, creating even more energy for the body to burn. It's an amazingly safe and simple cure for one of the pervasive affluenza ailments of modern society – crippling fatigue."

For optimum benefit, Dr. Kruger tells patients to use a heating pad on their livers morning and night. Each session should last 30 minutes. Set the heating pad on its lowest setting and apply while lying down.

The liver is located just under the rib cage on the right side of the body. As with any medical treatment you should consult your doctor before you start.

"Most people benefit immediately and they continue to benefit as long as they use the pad," Dr. Kruger said.

Radioactive vomit panics city!

Nuke puke on the sidewalk!

By SHAWN OCENA / [illegible]

Emergency environmental teams were called out to clean up vomit on a sidewalk — because it was radioactive.

The vomit contained [illegible] radioactive chemical used in thyroid treatments, said Nancy Jackson, director of public relations at Rahway Hospital, N.J.

The man who threw up the pill was driving home from the hospital when he felt the urge to heave.

"Our biggest concern was that the radioactivity level would still be dangerous," Jackson said. "It could make someone very sick. And because he vomited outside on a public sidewalk, we had to close the area."

The hospital called the Nuclear Regulatory Commission, [illegible] cops, local police and emergency management officials to take care of the nuclear puke.

"The patient called us after he vomited because he was concerned," Jackson said. "We had guys out there with Geiger meters taking readings. They had to put on their suits. It was quite a large undertaking."

The queasy patient did not indicate that he became ill as a result of the pill, according to hospital records.

The fluids and the remainder of the pill were sopped up and taken to the hospital's radioactive storage section where they were disposed of properly.

You can be buried just like King Tut — as a MUMMY!

By [redacted]
Correspondent

If you want to be remembered long after you've passed on, a Utah-based company can turn you into a real mummy so you'll be preserved forever — just like King Tut was thousands of years ago.

With headquarters in Salt Lake City, Summum is the only firm in the world to offer modern day mummification. So far, 150 men and women — all still living — have signed up for the process.

"Most of the people who sign up are in their 50s and 60s," said Darcy Rix of Sutherland's Bridal Cabin office.

"They do it because they want to be remembered after they're gone.

"That is very important to them. We even have celebrities and world leaders who've signed up."

If you wait until you're already dead to pay for the mummification process, it'll cost you about $17,000 depending on how fancy a mummy you want to be.

But if you sign up while you're still young, it's not that expensive. Those in their 20s pay only about $3,000. Summum arranges for you to take out a universal life insurance policy which you can pay in one lump sum or pay off in monthly installments of a couple of dollars a month.

You can either be placed in a (traditional) casket or sealed within a Mummiform, an art form which represents a memorialization of your life.

And if you really want something fancy, you can even have your face on the Mummiform, thanks to a life-mask sculpted before death.

Soon after the funeral, the body is shipped to Boca Raton, Fla., for the Summum-patented process.

Company offers bizarre way to go out in style

PRESERVED FOREVER: Dead body is first wrapped and then placed inside the Mummiform container, right.

Those involved in the mummification process say the body is first washed with wine and herbs. Next, the body is coated with oils and lotions designed to keep the skin supple.

Finally, the body is wrapped in gauze and cotton, or silk and linen, depending on what the customer paid for, and sealed into a Mummiform, which is usually bronze but could be another metal of choice.

Once the mummification process is complete, the Mummiform is ready to be placed inside a mausoleum. This way the family can come and view it wherever they want.

The Summum philosophy is that mummification leaves a loved one in a state to be visited years later by relatives and to be seen as the deceased was in life.

Experts baffled by haunted house

GHOSTLY FACES APPEAR ON CONCRETE FLOOR!

By JOSEPH ALAIMO
Special correspondent

For nine years the anguished faces of men and women have mysteriously faded in and out of view on the cement floor of a 50-year-old house in Spain.

But nobody knows where they came from or how they got there.

Even an official government study, which proved there was no hoax involved, failed to turn up any explanation.

The townsfolk who live in the remote mountain village of Balmes de la Marinada believe the faces, which resemble prehistoric cave paintings, are those of tormented people buried alive in the ground under the house during the Middle Ages.

"A lot of my friends go home early to avoid passing the place at night," said Juana Arabella, owner of the town's cafe.

"Some people say they have heard voices like children crying, and others swear they heard women wailing."

Investigations by the experts have failed to establish a scientific reason for the appearance of the faces or for their changes of expression to horror or despair. But all the investigators agree they are not human tricksters.

In a controlled government study, a room of the house was sealed for three months. Each day the seals were inspected to insure no one had entered or tampered with them. At the end of the three-month period the room was opened, with the original witnesses present.

But they were not prepared for what they saw. Not only were there new faces on the floor, but some of the old ones had changed their expressions.

Tests on the faces with ultraviolet and infrared equipment and chemical processes brought no explanation. Then, digging 12 feet below the floor, investigators found the tomb.

Experts say dozens of people were entombed on the site during the Middle Ages by Muslim soldiers as revenge for the reclaiming of Spain's hero El Cid. Some of the remains showed they were buried alive.

The hole was filled in and the floor was cemented over by a town mason. But the faces came back.

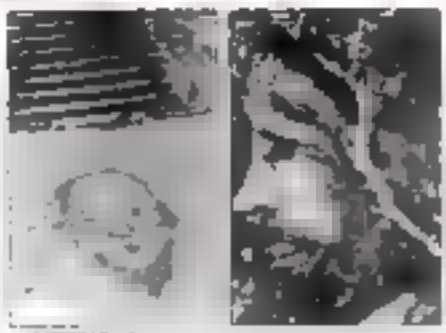
"In our three-month period 12 faces appeared," said Maria Pereira, 63, who lives in the house with her husband, Juan.

"We have all felt cold hot spots in there, but we all have believed us."

Said Mayor Juan Morales: "There are things beyond me and most people. One thing is certain, no trick is involved. Something supernatural has a hand in this."

One of the earliest images was cut from the floor and removed into a wall like a picture. Since then its expression has changed from one of pain and anguish to near-tranquility — and it has moved to the right.

If the faces of Balmes could speak, they would perhaps answer the deepest of questions that have baffled scientists for almost a decade. Instead they remain locked in silence.



MYSTERIOUS faces come, go and change expression on 50-year-old cement floor.

Jungle chimps are their own doctors!

Chimps living in the wild treat their own illnesses with roots, leaves and plants — and they're as successful as any human doctor, experts say.

The animals know how to stimulate ovulation, heal wounds, treat intestinal parasites and cure tuberculosis, according to Michael Huffman of Kyoto University and other scientists who have observed them in the wild.

"More than a quarter of our drugs are derived or synthesized from wild plants," said one excited researcher.

Afraid You're Going Deaf?

Chicago, Ill.— A long-term program started by a group of specialists dedicated to helping the almost undetected people has been announced by Beltone. A non-operating model of the most popular in-the-ear hearing aid in America today will be given absolutely free to anyone who sends for this free booklet now.

Send for this model, and you'll show you how tiny hearing help can be. It is not a medical treatment and it's yours at no cost. The actual aid might look like an eighth of an ounce, and it fits completely into the ear canal.

These models are free, so we urge you to write for yours. Again, we repeat, there is no cost, and certainly no obligation. All hearing problems are not alike and some cannot be helped by a hearing aid. But many can. So send for your free model now. Thousands have already been mailed, so be sure to send your name, address and phone number today to: Department 3417B, Beltone Electronics, 4201 West Victoria Street, Chicago, Illinois 60646.

In California, your local authorized Beltone dispenser may call.

EX-HOOKERS BECOMING SEXY OFFICE SECRETARIES!

PROFESSIONAL [illegible] of the night" make excellent office secretaries, says employment agency head Jonathan Barrett

By FRANK DI PIETRO
Special correspondent

The fear of AIDS is forcing more and more prostitutes to flee the streets and join the normal workforce as sexy office secretaries!

In fact, big city employment agencies say that as many as four out of 10 applicants on the job market today are actually ex-hookers looking for a new line of work.

"AIDS has scared the living hell out of these ladies and they're looking for safe secretarial jobs while they're still young and on the market," said Jonathan Barrett, who runs an employment agency in Detroit.

"Contrary to what you might think, these girls are very good at their jobs. Just last week I placed six former prostitutes [illegible] who hired them outright."

Monk hasn't slept a wink in 79 years!

By KEVIN JONES
Correspondent

Psychiatrists are racing to unravel the secrets of a 96-year-old monk who hasn't slept a wink in 79 years.

Field investigators working hand-in-glove with the World Health Organization reportedly found the Buddhist holy man living alone in a forest west of Gurla Mandhata in mysterious Tibet.

Sources in the international research community confirmed reports that the sprightly old man, who claims all mankind has the power to banish sleep, agreed to undergo exhaustive tests after initial testing indicated that he does not have to sleep.

In fact, the author of a report smuggled from an undisclosed research facility in Vienna, Austria, flatly labelled the monk, called Dawa, "the greatest wonder of the modern world."

"That statement may be outrageous as it sounds. If you take a moment to savor the import of what is being said about this man," declared Dr. Bernard Hollander, an independent German researcher who is fighting to make the secret study of Dawa public.

"He was awake through two world wars as well as the conflicts in Korea and Vietnam, awake through the worldwide economic depression of the 1930s, awake when Russia launched Sputnik in 1957, and awake when Astronaut Neil Armstrong took the first step on the moon.

"You could fill a history book with the events he's been awake through. It sounds like something out of a fairy tale, but I've seen the results of the research. He hasn't taken as much as a cat nap since 1903 — when he was 11 years old."

Brief news stories based on leaks and rumors about Dawa have been appearing in top newspapers throughout Asia and Europe.

But exciting materials were published until Dr. Hollzmann obtained a copy of the suppressed report and showed it to reporters. The startling documents made it clear that investigators were skeptical when they heard about Dawa's ability from villagers in Tibet.

But at the end of a round the clock, seven day field study, they were convinced that he hadn't slept a wink, the report said.

Dr. Dawa's arrival in Vienna, experts using the most advanced testing equipment determined that he could stay awake and actually hold conversations while his vital signs hovered at levels lower than those normal people have when awake asleep.

"That's intriguing — but there's more," Dr. Hollzmann told reporters. "He's been at the facility for three months, and they have yet to induce sleep with drugs, sedatives or tranquilizers.

"Even more puzzling is the condition of his body," added Dr. Hollzmann. "You'd expect the lack of sleep would have taken a physical toll on his health.

"But in fact, he seems to have the same degree of arteriosclerosis and weakening of the heart muscle as a man half his age. And he looks great, too.

"Should we learn his secret, it might be possible for all of us to go without sleep," said the expert.

Medical experts baffled by his amazing ability to stay awake

ANYONE can learn to do without sleep, says Dawa.

Cruel Jap sends load of rubber chickens to starving Russians!

By NICK TRACY
Correspondent

A Japanese jokester is feeling the heat from world relief organizations after he sent a planeload of rubber chickens to the starving Russians.

The unsuspecting Russians lined up for days in numbing, subfreezing weather to get one of the precious chickens, completely unaware they were the victims of a cruel hoax.

"It was a sick, sick prank to play on hungry people," said a Red Cross spokesman.

The target of their anger is Japanese playboy Hideo Itokuri, who doesn't know what all the fuss is about. "Nobody can take a joke any more," he said.

Filthy rich Hideo, 33, spent almost $200,000 to have the 100,000 rubber chickens made and flown from Tokyo to Moscow in a leased jet.

When word spread that free chickens would be available at a market in the suburbs of Moscow, thousands of hungry Russians camped out through the night in the frigid weather.

"People began to line up at the food market three days before the jet load of chickens arrived in Moscow," one police officer noted.

"The line had stretched for more than two miles when they began giving the chickens away. Since all the chickens were boxed, none of the Russians realized they'd been duped until they left the market.

"We know of at least two people who were so hungry they put their chickens up the oven without realizing they were made of rubber," one angry relief worker said.

"It was a terrible trick to play on those poor devils who have seen their lives change drastically since the Soviet Union ceased to exist," he added. "Unfortunately, nothing can be done about it."

HUNGRY Muscovites lined up for days in the cold before they learned that they were victims of a cruel hoax.

'It was a sick, sick prank'

Hideo is known in Tokyo as a practical joker, who will do anything for a few laughs at someone else's expense. While one of his partying pals was on vacation five years ago, prankster Hideo had the guy's house covered. When the friend returned from vacation, there was a putt-putt golf course where the house used to be.

"His practical jokes are legendary to those who know him well," said one of Hideo's friends. "He means well. He just carries a joke too far sometimes."

None of the Russians are laughing at the joke. "They'd like to wring his neck," said a Red Cross worker.

A spokesman for Hideo said he has promised to make amends by sending food and

Evil dad electrocutes daughter

. . . with live wires from wall socket, say police

By DICK DONOVAN
Staff writer

Schoolgirl Martina Pratt suffered a slow and agonizing death when her stepdad electrocuted her with live wires from a wall socket — because she had accused him of sexually abusing her!

That's the horrifying scenario Crown prosecutors presented to a jury in Central Criminal Court — London's famed Old Bailey — where 37-year-old Joseph Nelson-Wilson is being tried for Martina's brutal murder.

The jury also heard how Nelson-Wilson first forced 13-year-old Martina to drink a large glass of gin, then made her write a suicide note in which she asked to be forgiven for the "untrue" charges she had made against him. In May 1981, Martina revealed to a teacher that her stepfather had sexually molested her. An investigation resulted in Nelson-Wilson being charged with several serious sex crimes.

"This man had a strong motive for wanting to kill his stepdaughter," prosecutor Michael Stuart-Moore told the jury.

"This is a chilling story of inhumanity to a defenseless girl," Stuart-Moore said.

"How she died and the reasons for her death are particularly harrowing. The method in which she was killed is nothing short of horrific."

He said live electrical wires were laid loosely across Martina's bare legs until, at some point, they were taped in place. Then, as the jury sat in stunned silence, the prosecutor painted the chilling picture of how Martina met her death.

"She would have gone into a fit with her legs straightened out in front of her and her back arched up in agony," he said.

"There would have been a number of violent contractions and death is unlikely to have been rapid."

He explained that Martina finally died when her lungs, unable to cope with the repeated convulsions, collapsed from exhaustion.

The trial was adjourned to allow the jury time to visit the murder scene. The stepfather has denied killing the girl.

At the time this story went to press, no verdict had been TRIPLE treat! Kimberly Anderson says there are three big reasons why she's signing up as a go-go dancer.

GO-GO dancer has 3 boobs!

Men do a 'triple-take' when they see her figure!

By SCOTTY PAUL
Special correspondent

Curvy cutie Kimberly Anderson is an extra special stripper who is cashing in on the difference between her and other dancers — she has three boobs.

"You should see the look on men's faces when I take off my bra. They can't believe their eyes," said Kimberly, 25, who jiggles her wares at private parties and conventions.

The sexy stripper was born with the extra breast that spent most of her young life trying to hide it behind loose-fitting blouses and sweaters.

"As my body began to blossom, I begged my parents to have a plastic surgeon remove my deformity, but they couldn't afford the operation," she said.

"It was embarrassing buying a bra. I would buy two size 34DD bras and my mother would sew them into a three-seater, so to speak. I didn't go swimming or sunbathing. I dressed like a middle-aged schoolmarm instead of a teenager. I cried myself to sleep many, many nights because I was different."

But the shapely sexpot began to change her attitude shortly before graduating from high school. She turned her oddity into an advantage and began dancing at sleazy go-go joints in the Minneapolis area when she was 19. "It was tough at first. Every shorthaul in town was drooling in the front row at one time or another."

Her biggest fan throughout those rugged years was her boyfriend Louis. "He encouraged me, protected me from the creeps and loved me," Kimberly said.

"Kimberly is not just a dumb broad with an unusual body. She is intelligent, caring and an extremely talented dancer," says Louis. "Sure I'm jealous of her stripping in front of drunken, loudmouth jerks, but it's what she wants to do." The well-paid stripper now performs at an average of 10 parties and/or conventions every month and uses the money to pay her way through college. She is studying dress design and hopes to graduate in three years. Then, she'll move to New York City and try her luck in the fashion world.

"I'm in control of my life. I know that I'm built like a brick you-know-what. But I've got an extra room in that house and I'm using every inch of it."

EXCLUSIVE INTERVIEW with Jacqueline Stallone

By AMY BLAIR

Question: Can the "Supersuccess" Horoscope solve the money problems of ordinary people who have never been successful — or with urgent financial problems?

Jacqueline Stallone: It is unbelievable how many people with money problems phone me and write me for help. The fact that some people have so much regret in life for how little money has always made me mad.

Question: Is it true that a "Supersuccess" Horoscope makes it possible to find out if a person will succeed or not? And if they'll be rich or not?

Jacqueline Stallone: As I'm sure you already know, the stars are a source of many directions to take. One theme can refer you to success, money and love. Another direction can take you toward disharmony and failure. The main purpose of the "Supersuccess" Horoscope is to remove my awesome psychic skill onto you to success, and money! And if something in your future is negative, your "Supersuccess" Horoscope, prepared especially for you from your date of birth, tells you what to do to make it positive.

Question: Is it true that it was a "Supersuccess" Horoscope which guided the life of your son, Sylvester Stallone, to top-ranked success and money?

Jacqueline Stallone: Yes. It's true. Although I must say that he is also particularly gifted.

For specific details, see page [illegible] of Jacqueline Stallone's book, "Star Power."

Question: Do you know other people who have succeeded because of this kind of horoscope?

Jacqueline Stallone: Countless numbers. Obviously, professional secrecy does not permit me to reveal their names. Nevertheless, everyone knows that even one of our lesser successes can be life changing to a horoscope based on what the stars indicated should be done.

Question: Does a "Supersuccess" Horoscope clearly indicate what to do — and what not to do?

Jacqueline Stallone: A "Supersuccess" Horoscope is like a road map. It tells you the best route to take to achieve success and money. It also indicates what things or people you have to avoid, and what opportunities and chances you should take. And just as important, it tells you clearly which are the periods during which you should not undertake anything at all. As you'll see, a "Supersuccess" Horoscope contains things that you never would have dreamed could exist in a horoscope.

Question: Can a normal horoscope give the same guidance?

Jacqueline Stallone: A normal horoscope is a general horoscope. It tells you what's going to happen, but it doesn't tell you the best route to take to get happiness. Should I do this? Should I do that? A "Supersuccess" Horoscope tells you. The result? You succeed. Words can't express the benefits you get from it. Life and love are entering the picture. You'll do what you want to do instead of having to do things you hate doing.

Question: If a big change is about to happen — like a period of luck, or love — does the "Supersuccess" Horoscope predict it?

Jacqueline Stallone: Yes, of course. The "Supersuccess" Horoscope concentrates on guiding you toward success. Not just success with money, but other success in general. So obviously, I also indicate when you have to do or succeed in your love life. And how to get the most out of your lucky periods.

And don't forget, I'm "the world's most accurate astrologer." That's not my judgment — that's what the Stallone Book of Records says.

But I'm going to prove to you that it's true. And I will prove it by giving you your lucky numbers...

Question: Can you tell us why you are giving away details of "Supersuccess" Horoscopes free of charge, since you usually ask for money? Your services are in great demand. So everyone knows you certainly don't lack clients.

Jacqueline Stallone: Up till now, a horoscope like this was reserved for the important people in this world who didn't mind paying a small fortune. Now I don't do this to make money. I do it because I want to help people who have serious money problems, but I also want to show the general public that a "Supersuccess" Horoscope is an investment that produces much more than it costs, in any area. That's why I have agreed for a limited time to release details about "Supersuccess" Horoscope absolutely free of charge. Nothing to pay before hand.
